ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

It is no easy task to find adequate words of praise and gratitude for the dearest people in my life who have assisted and supported me on this journey, especially my BFFs, Female and Male. My Confidants have encouraged and counselled me and their feedback has kept me on the straight and narrow throughout this project. Their guidance, enthusiasm and perceptive comments were heartfelt and deeply appreciated. They provided invaluable insights into the precarious world of internet dating for Boomers – in their fifties and above, whilst the contributions and sound advice of my beautiful daughters and friends of both sexes from the 30+ demographic provided balance and contrast. I also owe a huge debt of gratitude to my 83-year-old Mother for her reiterative readings of the manuscript. Her sharp eyes can spot a typographical error at a distance and her counsel keeps me grounded. I now hope to have all bases covered.

^{1.} 0:14 PREAMBLE. p. xi. There are those who remain implacably opposed to the notion that we can have more than One Best Friend – and of course, nothing is Forever. This narrative aims to set the record straight. Some of us are blessed to count several male and female friends as our best friends. Though some may live across the globe, the visceral bonds we share are undeniable.
